

My First Visit DOCTOR In AUSTRALIA

I was sick last saturday so I asked my host parents to take me to a clinic. I found that seeing a doctor in Australia is totally different from that in Hong Kong.

When I got into the clinic, I saw many patients sitting on chairs and waiting for the doctor. My host mother and I went to a counter for some procedures, the nurse asked many things about me such as my name, birthday, address, etc. After that, we took a seat. About half an hour later, the nurse called my name room one. I told the doctor that I had a cough, sore throat, running nose and headache. Then, the doctor checked my throat and also my heart beat. He so we went into a temperature, advised more water. Finally, we walked out to the counter and paid for the fee. I thought that the nurse will give me the medicine but from the Hong, the the she just gave me a paper with the name and we need to buy them medical centre ourselves. In Hong nurse will give us the medicine in clinic and tell us about its use.

Anyway, both the doctors and nurses in Hong Kong and Australia are nice. I enjoyed seeing doctors in Australia!
