Reflection

When I first heard about the study tour in UK, I didn't know what to do. I wasn't sure if I would get the opportunity because a lot of students have potential to be accepted as well.

When I got accepted, I remember that I couldn't stop searching about the place where we're going and just about all the information I had to know. Then, a lot of briefings or meetings happened before we depart to UK. It was also a way of getting to know the people who I was going to be with for 2 weeks.

Arriving in Oxford is one of the highlights of this trip. We were given our own rooms and schedules. The welcome dinner was as expected. Everyone was awkward with each other except the people who knew each other. We had our own separate groups. But after days of being with them, we finally got closer.

We had tutorials and lectures. I took Music and Law as my major and minor respectively. I have learnt a lot from both of my teachers. They taught me about music notations, history of music, how some parts of the UK have different laws, and even went to a court to watch a murder trial. Overall, tutorials were fun and I have learnt a lot more than I can imagine.

Aside from academics, they also arranged tours for us. They took us around Oxford, Cambridge and London. We have seen the Bridge of Sighs, Christ Church College, Buckingham Palace and the Big Ben, although the tower was under construction.

Having to tour around incredible places in the UK, or writing a 2,500-word essay, it wouldn't have been the same without the people around me. Firstly, our teachers, Mr Khan and Ms Sally for always sticking around and giving us advice. Secondly, my schoolmates who were always ~~there~~<sup>up</sup> for a challenge and made this trip more fun and exiting. But mostly, the new people who came from different parts of the world such as India, England, Germany and more. They have been so approachable and friendly. Most specially, Dev, Tina, Kavya, Callum, Hamcil, Karl, Aryan and Dhruv. I'll never forget what we have shared with each other.

To conclude this, being a part of this trip is such a great blessing. I've learned to be independent and understanding. This is most probably the best experience in my life so far.

Thank you:)
