This study tour was quite nice. My expectations for this trip was expected, I saw a lot of British architecture and learnt about the British culture.

I met a lot of new people from different countries in this trip. This really helped by social skills because I am usually not a social person.

The food was okay. Since I wasn't used to eating British food, I had trouble with my diet. The accommodations were great. First, we lived in Oxford, then in Cambridge. Finally, in London. My favourite was Cambridge because the farm was more free and I could hang out with a lot of people.

A memorable moment was with this one girl, who lives in a different house, since we had two houses in Cambridge, who I dropped off ~~in~~ ~~the~~ to her room. It was really memorable because we talked and became really close. I even watched Netflix with her. I will miss her.

In conclusion, I think this trip has changed me from a shy person to a more socialable person. I also went out of my comfort zone by doing dishes or sweeping the floor, now I think I can be a housewife :).

Thank
You :)
