Reflection

To me, this study trip was remarkable. As I'm a form five student, this is the very precious-last chance for me to have a study tour. Life has many ups and downs. However, the ups are further more than the downs.

I enjoyed the time spent with my buddies. I enjoyed the time we play card games with our dearest host family. I enjoyed the time to cheer for the New Zealand team with Gemma and Holly. I enjoyed the ^{yummy} dinner. I enjoyed everything here and I'm grateful for all of them.

The first sight that New Zealand gave me was the greenery view so as the fresh air. When I woke up, the fresh air and nice view of trees just caught my eyeball, without any movement. I love Auckland. Not only is the beautiful view, but also the people here.

They are really nice and willing to talk. They lend their helping hands to help people, especially us, the tourists.

Besides the orthodox curriculum that we had these days, I have learnt something that I couldn't learn from the books. I have learnt the energetic and positive mind here. Moreover, bravery for talking in English was another thing that I learnt from my dearest buddies.

Time flies, I can't believe I have to leave this stunning country tomorrow. It's hard to choose the best memory among the ^{wonderful} pieces we had here. During the last day, I will cherish the time at school and will take as much pictures as I can. Xoxo.

Thank You :)
