

My Sharings

Through this study tour I have a lot of fun with my friends and my buddy.

On 15 July, I had visited the Power House Museum and the University of New South Wales, Sydney University. The Power House Museum was very interesting, I knew how the train works and the history of the technology and clothes. In the Sydney University, I found that the buildings were very different from Hong Kong. The buildings there were more classic than Hong Kong and bigger than Hong Kong. After that, I watched sunset cruise at Sydney Harbour with dinner on board. Although my seat could not see the view but I still have a great moment in there.

Then I finally met my buddy on the next day. My buddy was come from Hong Kong but her English is very good.

They have five lessons per day and one hour per lesson and they could leave school at two fortyfive. It was very different from our school in Hong Kong.

They didn't have a stable classroom. I love this school a lot, the students and teachers there were very nice and helpful. Although my English wasn't good but they would try to understand me.

The most unforgettable event was sand boarding. It was an excited event. It fascinated me too. When I chose the highest point to slide, I fell out of the board and roll on the sand for few cycles. I ate a lot of sand but I found that was crunchy and tasty. Suddenly, nightmare started. A sudden rain made all of us wet.

It was very windy that some of us got sick.

Actually, the whole trip was very fun and excited and I like it. I would like to join other study tour next year.
